*Oh, Henrietta, we love thee, we do;
To Henrietta we'll ever be true.
Our hearts and our lives we give thee;
Thy praises we raise on high.
Thou Alma Mater, to thee we will live.
Our best we freely give
For thee, our all; we'll win or we'll fall for Henrietta High.*

CLASS WILL

Classmates, and members of the Faculty of Henrietta High:

We, the class of 1947, have called you together upon this solemn and serious occasion to listen to our last will and testament and to receive from our dying hands the few gifts we have to bestow in our last moments. Such things as we have we pray that you will accept as a sacred trust from ones that have gone before.

We, the class of 1947, being about to pass out of this intellectual sphere, in full possession of a stuffed mind and almost superhuman understanding, do make and publish this our last will and testament.

We do dispose of our possessions as follows:

I, MARILYN RICHEY, will my absent-mindedness to Carl Christman, my school books to anyone who can keep track of them, and my job as Hub Editor to Carolyn Schlechter.

I, SHIRLEY COULTRIP, bequeath my muscles to Nelson Howe, the scorebook with prompt lineups to whoever can get them from Coach, and my ability to play the piano with fantastic motions to my sister.

I, LELAND MOORE, give my ability to play basketball to Carl Christman, my ability to pass out graduation cards to Corrine Husted, and my ability to get around teachers to Harold Leimbach.

I, FLORENCE YENIK, donate my mischievousness to anyone who can get away with it better than I did, my naturally curly hair to Arlene Holzhauer, and my share of locker 13 to anyone who can get more books in there than I.

I, DONALD GIBSON, will my ability to be messy in physics to Mr. Gould, my trombone to Laura Mae Brown, provided that she will play "Trombone Toboggan" at the next assembly, and my mechanical mind to Mary Maszton.

I, HELEN HORVATH, will and bequeath my office periods to Pam Andress, my cheerleading tights to Jerry Carrier provided he and Abbie Rennert try out next year, and my resistance to being ticklish to Stosh Truszak.

I, LAURA YENIK, will my share of locker 13 to anyone who's not afraid to open it, my cheerleading ability to Kenny Unger, and my very good behavior to Janet Coultrip.

I, ETHEL KRISTY, donate my stocky figure to Dorothy Howe, my ability to get in trouble in Mr. Fails' study hall to Caroline Greszler, and my share of locker 13 to anyone who can get more books in there than I.

I, JAMES BUCHS, bequeath my height to Nelson Howe, my ability to get good grades in general business without studying to Voneta Hozalski, and my ability to play basketball to Arnold Vandercarr.

I, JAMES IVES, will my ability to act and ad lib. in plays to Janet Coultrip, my ability to get blamed for things I don't do in sixth period study hall to anyone who wants it, and my scientific ability to Harold Leimbach.

I, BETTY HEYMAN, will my blue jeans to Voneta Hozalski, my ability to play the saxophone to Barbara Griffin, my love for dancing to Harold Leimbach, and my stretchy gum to Mr. Fails.

I, MARJORIE GRIFFIN, will my ability to break fingers to Dorothy Howard, all the offices I held in my senior year to Albert Rennert, and my physics book and workbook to anyone who wants it, provided they understand everything in it as I didn't.

I, ELAINE WILFORD, will my stylish clothes to Laura Mae Brown provided she can get in them, my long fingernails to my sister provided she files and polishes them every night, and my fat figure to Janet Schlechter.

I, CARL GOTTSCHLING, will my typing period to anybody who can work harder than I did, my wavy hair to Ronnie Heyman, and my physics workbook to Edward Perkins.

We, the class of '47, will and bequeath to the class of '48 any pieces of paper, chalk, or pencil stubs that we have left behind in the excitement of gathering up our beloved treasures for the last time. Make good use of these, for this is a free country.

We, the class of '47, will and bequeath to the class of '49 any overlooked chunks of gum we may have left sticking to the underside of desks, door-knobs, chairs, or other likely places. Sometimes we have had to rid ourselves of these too quickly to be able to pick and choose the most desirable means of disposal.

We, the class of '47, will and bequeath to the class of '50 our "Kiddie Kar" to be placed in the trophy cabinet as an inspiration to others, for it will remind the students that it is the honorable chariot on which the class of '47 rode through the old school building with such flying colors.

CLASS HISTORY

In September, 1942, fourteen former students hustled back to begin high school careers. Upon arriving, we found Shirley Coultrip, formerly of Lorain, added to the roll call. After the matter of getting settled, we elected our class officers as follows: Marjorie Griffin, as President; Ethel Kristy, as Vice President; Helen Horvath, as Secretary; and James Buchs, as Treasurer. Working hard on our subjects, we were soon interrupted by the Sophomores, who gave us a hard going-over, called "Freshman Initiation," which lasted one whole day at school and was carried over into the evening. We survived, and with no ill effects. At Christmas time, Marjorie Griffin invited us to her house for a Christmas party. All who were able to attend had a grand time. Mid-year exams were taken, and we all passed with flying colors. Then with an over-abundance of snow, we decided to sponsor a coasting party. It was held on February 14 at the Buchs' residence. Time elapsed, and after a suggestion at a class meeting, the class decided to sponsor a contest of three one-act plays to be given in April by the Freshman, Sophomore, and combined Junior and Senior classes. The play entitled "Elmer and the Lovebug" was our choice. About this time, a new member from Oberlin, Carl Gottschling by name, was accepted in our midst. The total reached 16. The remainder of the year sped by, exams were taken, and we future Sophomores were anxiously awaiting our next school year.

As the old school bell rang out its last warning to go to our class rooms one early September morning, fifteen seats were filled in the Sophomore room. After the roll was called, we found that one of our classmates, June Gerber, had left us to go to school in Elyria. While we were grieving over this loss, we did have one consolation. There were three new teachers, two strangers, Mr. Gould and Miss Watson, and one we all knew, D. A. Wasem. We put our heads together and thought it would be a good idea to choose class officers. Jim Buchs got top honors and Glen Sanders, second; Shirley Coultrip was chosen to do all the writing, and Marilyn Richey to take care of the money. Our first business was "Freshman Initiation." Of course, we had to repay them for what we got when we were Freshmen, so we had quite a bit of fun. So did they—we think. On November third we sponsored a hayride. Since it was leap year, the Daisy Maes invited the Little Abners. After a tour of the whole township, we stopped at the Scout Camp for entertainment. The Christmas season called for another party. This time Mrs. Breuning invited us to her Oberlin home for the affair. We had a wonderful time and were all pleased with our gifts. Exams came and went, even though we didn't have many school sessions during the winter months because of snow. All work and no play makes Jack a dull boy, as the saying goes, so on April 23 we laid aside our homework and journeyed to the Coliseum for a class skating party. Afterwards we were the guests of Betty Heyman at her home, where we were entertained and served refreshments. Despite the cuts and bruises and broken bones, we all attended school the next day to continue working. We really hadn't done much that could add any money to our class funds, so on May 18 we asked Johnny Jackson to come out to play some tunes, old and new, so we might sponsor a May Dance. This dance turned out to be a success. Our class boasts of a very fine athletic record for the year. The Sophomore Class gave to the sports activities of this year three varsity boys and three cheerleaders. The spring pitcher of our Henrietta team was a Sophomore boy, with others from the class doing their share. Our girls were also very active on the girls' softball team, which was not very successful this season, sorry to say.

These 15 ambitious Sophomores studied and studied the last few weeks of school so they might make the grade and return next fall in the esteemed rank of Juniors.

In the fall of '45, the fifteen members of the class of '47 resumed the burden of studying their books and reaching their destination as Juniors. This year certainly held many surprises. The leaders of our gang were Helen Horvath, as President; Laura Yenik, as Vice-President; Marjorie Griffin, as Secretary; and last but not least, Marilyn Richey, as Treasurer. We received the traditional duty of taking charge of the Junior store. Then we sponsored many dances to boost the sum in the treasury. On April 9, 1946, we Juniors royally entertained the upperclassmen at the Junior-Senior Banquet. The dinner was held at the Martin Hotel in Oberlin, and a dance followed, which was held at the school. April 12 and 13 were the dates of our Junior Play, called "That Crazy Smith Family." The year soon passed and all the future Seniors looked forward to the next prosperous season when they would be considered the "Mighty Seniors" and models for the younger classmen.

The '46-'47 school year found fourteen of the originals back, anxious to participate in the many new thrills of the senior year. On September 9, 1946, we chose the following potentates: Shirley Coultrip, as the leader; Helen Horvath, the substitute; Marjorie Griffin, to write the notes; and Marilyn Richey, to dole out carefully the money. The first business to

CLASS PROPHECY

I was enjoying a vacation in New York, the first in many years. As I was strolling through the park on the way to my hotel, I felt rather lost, all alone in the big city. When I passed a small newsstand, I noticed the headline in a newspaper. It read, "Inherits $500,000 Fortune." I gasped. "What a tidy sum to fall heir to," I thought. "I wonder who can be that lucky?"

Just for curiosity's sake, I turned into the small shop to buy a paper. I bought it and saw several other interesting headlines, so I invested more in newspapers. I turned to leave the shop when a picture of a beautiful girl on a magazine cover caught my eye. I picked up the magazine to examine it more closely. Down in one corner, in small print, were the words "Photo by D. L. Gibson—see page 2." I turned to page two. Sure enough, it was the Gibson I knew, the one from Henrietta, my classmate Don, who was so keen about photography. But imagine this, a photographer for a model agency! Nice work if you can get it, and I guess Donnie did.

As I paid for the magazine I made a mental note to look Donnie up during my stay in the city.

I gathered up my newspapers and headed for the hotel, thinking I had enough to read for the evening.

After dinner I went into the lobby of the hotel to settle down to my reading. I picked up the paper with the headline about the $500,000. As I was reading the details of the story, I saw the name of the heir several times, but it didn't phase me in the least. It was just some Mrs. Betty some-one. I can't think of the name now, but as I continued to read, it told something of the lady's history. She lived in Henrietta and was the former Miss Betty Heyman. "Why, that's Nean Heyman!" I murmured to myself. "I used to go to school with her." The people around me were annoyed at my muttering and let me know, by way of sly glances. Feeling slightly conspicuous, I buried my nose deeper in the newspaper.

Turning the sheet I came upon the page devoted to scientific developments. One article was about the completion of the Z-Bomb. When I was in high school, it was the A-Bomb but there had been so many others invented since, they were almost running out of letters to name them. The article contained a statement by the inventor, Prof. Gordon K. Wilford. I wondered. Could he be the Gordon Wilford I knew in Henrietta?

As I glanced across the page, a photo caught my eye. It was a picture of an explorer or some one of the sort with a group of natives. The explorer was a woman, and she looked rather familiar. I read under the picture. It wasn't an explorer at all; it was a botanist, Prof. Shirley Coultrip, who was studying plant life in the Amazon region. No wonder the woman looked familiar. Shirley was my classmate at good old H. H. S.

"My, this lobby is getting noisy," I thought to myself. "Perhaps I had better go to my room to finish my papers. I wonder what fate befell the rest of the kids in my class. I'd give anything to hear something about them." With this thought in mind, I returned to my room.

Settling down in a chair with my feet propped up at the accustomed angle, I again became absorbed in my reading.

As I scanned the paper, I noticed the story of an appointment of a U. S. minister to Mars. What next will they think of? Now it's Mars; pretty soon they'll be sending ambassadors and ministers to Hades! I read down the column a short distance. The minister was a woman, the first to ever represent the U. S. in Mars. Her name was Ethel Kristy, from Ohio. I was willing to bet any money it was the Ethel I went to school with. She always liked to argue, and would be a very good one to represent the U. S. in Mars and stick up for our side. Right then I made another mental note, this time to write to my Congressman and ask about the next minister to see whether it really was Ethel.

My! what's this? "Two save lives of passenger." "That was a noble deed," I thought. "I wonder how it was done?" I read further. It seemed that a jet-propelled strato-liner, on a regular flight to the moon, had crashed in the northern woods of Canada shortly after its take-off. Many of the passengers were injured, but the first aid administered by the stewardess, a Helen Horvath, and a Royal mountie, Lee Moore, saved many of the lives. These names sounded familiar, too. I didn't doubt in the least that Helen had turned out to be a stewardess. She always liked being different. And Lee Moore, if I remembered rightly, was the policeman in our Senior play. Maybe he liked being a policeman and joined the Royal mounties after graduation. At any rate, I was glad to hear of them.

New York is famous for its scandal sheets. Just to be curious, I bought one. One story was titled "Laura Jilts Another." This must be one of those little incidents made into a scandalous story. I commenced reading. Laura, it seems, was rumored to have married the son of a steel magnate, and now she was leaving him. But, of course, it was just a rumor. How those newspaper writers like to use their imagination! I happened to be corresponding with "Laura," and none of the story was true. Laura was my girl friend Lollie, whom I used to chum around with all through grade and high school. This story made me angry. Who were those blundering idiots that write such scandal? I turned to the editorial page to see if the reporting staff was mentioned. It was, and there on the list in the complaint department was Carl Gottschling. I forgot my anger and laughed. Carl would make the ideal person to take all complaints. I could just see him with his feet propped up on a desk answering phone calls. Then a brilliant idea struck me. I rushed to the phone and called the complaint department just to talk to Carl for old time's sake. It was nice to hear the voice of one you knew.

After my phone conversation, I found it hard to settle down to reading again, so I put on my coat and went out for a walk. As I strolled through the park, my mind was filled with thoughts of my classmates. We used to have so much fun. How I wished we could relive those days! All this reminiscing made me feel rather low. Then I noticed the sign on a theater. A dazzling musical was in progress, introducing a new singing sensation. I hesitated. Should I or shouldn't I go in? Yes, maybe it would lift my spirits if I sat through a musical. I approached the box office, purchased my ticket, and entered the lobby.

I saw that I wasn't the only one wanting to see the picture. While in the line in the lobby waiting to get a seat, I heard the lilting voice of the new star. It was a beautiful voice, so soft and sweet. It sounded just like Florence Yenik. She had a marvelous voice when she was in high school. I wondered if she had made the grade and was now in the movies. I was impatient. I pushed my way through the waiting crowd, so I could get into the theater sooner to see if it really were Florence. During my mad rush through the crowd, I caught a glimpse of the girl as her face was

That happy day when school began, a group of students collected in Room 9 and began their new season as the Junior class. They found there was a new member among them, Voneta Hozalski from Lynch, Kentucky. Later in December, they lost a member from their class. A farewell party was given for Wayne Stayton at Richard Currier's, December 9. Richard Currier left school early in March, 1947, to join the Army.

Besides the usual job of running the school store, giving the Junior-Senior Banquet, and presenting their play, "The Big Blowup," given in April, they sponsored a few other activities. Among them were the "Hoosier Cornhuskers," a program given December 15, and a dance with Floyd Hey's orchestra, given February 21.

Having had a successful Junior year, they hope to make their last year even better.

The sophomore class started their second year of high school with sixteen students. We occupied the laboratory for our happy home room and had Mr. Gould as our home room teacher.

We started the year out right by initiating the poor freshmen. Their costumes and actions were enjoyed by all.

At mid-year, everybody drew names and enjoyed a Christmas Party. Then every body was happy at the arrival of Christmas and New Year's vacation. After vacation we all came back and had mid-year exams.

On March 5, 1947, we sponsored a dance at which everybody enjoyed dancing to Shirk's Orchestra. A good time was had by all, we hope.

With the year coming to a close we all look forward to becoming Juniors.

On September 3, 1946, the new Freshman Class assembled down in A-1 with Mr. Lowell A. Gatts as the class adviser.

The highlight of the year was Freshman Initiation. Everyone was dressed like a character from the comic strips. If you were present you would have recognized — Stanley Truszak as girl basketball champ, Nelson Howe—Judy Foster, Edwin Gibson—Gravel Gertie, Dorothy Howe—Pa Cinders, Norma Hawke— Cokey, Bonnie Daniels—B. O. Plenty, Lois Jean Coultrip—Mr. Cinders, Laura Mae Brown—Aunt Jemima, Pamela Andress—Sad Sack, and Colletta Wilford—Clem Kiddlehopper.

At Christmas time the Freshmen joined the rest of the high school for a Christmas Party.

The Freshman boys have participated in the basketball games to help make the team a success.

We are looking forward to trying to help make school activities more of a success next year.

Seventh and Eighth Grades

Whatever may or may not be said for the school year 1946-47, to the pupils in Grades VII and VIII it has been just a bit different. No longer do they sit in the same room with the same teachers for all their classes. Now, at the end of each forty-five minute period, they join the general scramble as half a hundred others emerge gladly from one class to proceed sorrowfully to the next.

The year opened with twenty-five boys and girls in Room 7, but during the second semester Walter Gottschling left to go to Amherst School. His classmates attended a farewell party for him given by Harold Bonnett.

Generally speaking, activities have been much as usual—reading, writing, arithmetic, with a few extras for good measure, such as parties, dramatics, and basketball games. Of course there was also a civil trial which perhaps you attended. Did or did not Lois Kothe's red-and-white (or was it a black-and-white?) cow damage Billy Dodd's carefully tended lawn, resplendent in its green leaves? (Or are there green leaves in February?) The question has not yet been fully decided.

Occasionally the pupils have attempted to write limericks and other verses. Let us close by quoting the best of these, one written by Virginia Lee Greszler:

THE MARCH WIND

*Hear the March wind blow all day,
Hear it sing, "Come out and play."
Snow is falling here and there,
Though the weather is so fair.*

*Hear the March wind blow and whistle.
Swaying, there's a tired thistle.
In the meadow, grasses blow;
In my garden, tulips grow.*

Fifth and Sixth Grades

As the school year of 1946 and 1947 draws to a close, the students of the fifth and sixth grades think back over the past year with many happy memories. They have tried to fit their scholastic activities in with everyday living experiences.

The highlights of the year were the several parties held. Among them were the Halloween party, Christmas party, several birthday parties, and the PTA party given them for getting the highest percentage of members in the PTA membership campaigns.

The fifth and sixth grades have proven to the high school that they are willing salesmen. They have sold tickets for plays, programs, carnivals, Hub subscriptions, and various other tickets.

The periods the students look forward to most are the regular gym periods under the coaching of Mr. John Fails and the periods of leisure in the new home room library. This library, made to create more interest in reading, contains books which the students get from the booktruck, as well as the room's own books.

THIRD AND FOURTH GRADES

Third and Fourth Grades

This school year of 1946-47 has proven very successful. We have had several pupils on the high honor roll, as well as the honor roll, throughout the year.

We have participated in various programs, especially the Christmas and Spring Music Programs. For the Spring Music Program, our room danced folk dances and sang songs of different countries.

The highlights of our years, as we look back, were the days that we had art work; the days the wiener sandwiches were served; the days that movies were shown; and every day that was warm enough to permit us to play with our new "kicker ball."

During the year we lost four pupils, Eddy Gottschling, Raymond Telling, Joan Heidrich, and John Fritz. However, we gained one pupil, Douglas Schneider, who came from Amherst.

First and Second Grades

Reading Clubs, Christmas programs, seasonal parties may come and go every year, but what is this everyone is talking about in the primary room? A bus trip! Yes, a bus trip was planned to the dairy, the fire station, and the post office. We made a post office in our room for Valentine's Day. We even made our own postage stamps and perforated them with a toy sewing machine. Then we visited a real post office. One day we wrote letters to our mothers about our post office. We made our own envelopes, bought postage stamps, and mailed them.

The Music Festival also holds a big place in our spring activities. We practiced songs and choral reading for "The Boy and the Goats." We painted a frieze for it, too.

PHYSICS CLASS

Man has always felt a desire to understand the world about him. For many years his information was unproved and frequently fantastic. Men depended on their imaginations and on what they called "common sense." The result, of course, was ignorance, and even worse than mere ignorance, completely erroneous ideas about natural phenomena. Thus we, the Physics class of ten boys and three girls, are proving to ourselves that those theories were untrue.

No person today can be considered well educated unless he has some familiarity with the scientific method and with the vast amount of knowledge which that method has placed at the finger tips of almost everyone.

COMMERCIAL CLASSES

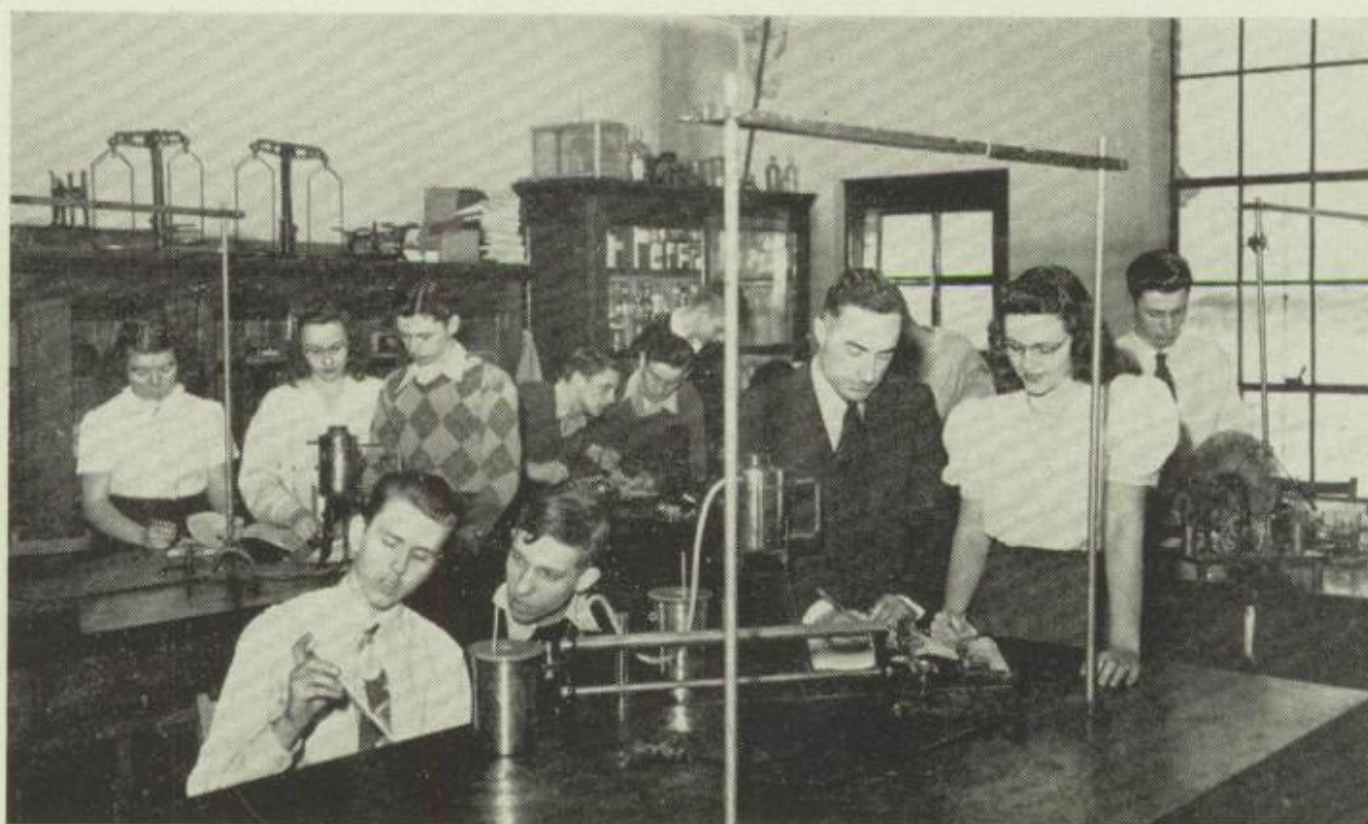

Four commercial subjects, Typing I, Typing II, Bookkeeping, and General Business are taught at Henrietta this year. The typing classes, with a total enrollment of fifteen students, have been of great value to the school, having aided in getting our monthly "Hub" off the press, and having done much of the office secretarial work. "Speed" and "Accuracy," as usual, were the bywords of the 1946-47 classes.

The thirteen Bookkeeping students have learned the complex and complicated cycles of business record-keeping. The course in General Business has given the students a knowledge of business transactions—a knowledge which is necessary for any good citizen in carrying on everyday business transactions wisely. Thirteen pupils take this course, also.

PHYSICS CLASS

Absent: Harold Leimbach.

DRAMATICS CLASS

The dramatics class of '47 under the direction of Miss Virginia Richmond have cooperated and worked hard to put on successful plays throughout the year.

The class of twenty industrious pupils has tried to help make the school programs more enjoyable by putting on one-act plays. Some of the plays that were given are: "Stuffed Owls," "But Now There's Buford," "The Bird on Nellie's Hat," and "Thursdays at Home." "Friend Mary" was presented February 12 in honor of Abraham Lincoln's birthday. "Three's a Crowd," which was nicely given, was enacted for the pupils at Brownhelm School.

"Those Phinney Girls," a three-act play, which was given March 14 and 15, was a great success.

GIRLS' GLEE CLUB

MIXED CHORUS

When the mixed chorus was once more assembled, thirty-four answered roll call. After preliminary songs, they began practice for the Christmas program which was held at the Brownhelm school. The united voices of the Henrietta mixed chorus and the Brownhelm mixed chorus joined in a harmonious Yuletide blend.

They entered no contests this year, but they made an excellent showing at the Spring Festival, held March 28, 1947. Officers of the Mixed Chorus were: President, Marjorie Griffin; Secretary, Carolyn Schlechter.

BOYS' CHOIR

GIRLS' GLEE CLUB

Once more the Henrietta girls combined their voices into one melodic blend under the leadership of Miss Marjorie Howe.

After much hard work and weeks of Miss Howe's excellent guidance, the group found themselves unable to attend the Clearview contest which occurred during the flu epidemic.

However, the twenty-three girls did make a fine showing at the annual Music Festival, this year held on March 28. The officers were: President Marjorie Griffin; Vice President, Shirley Coultrip; Secretary, Dorothy Howard; Treasurer, Janet Coultrip.

BOYS' CHOIR

When the boys assembled for Boys' Glee Club, it was found that there were not enough boys. Instead of Boys' Glee Club, they formed the Boys' Choir, which includes boys from the third grade to the twelfth.

The Boys' Choir sang under the direction of Miss Howe at the Spring Festival given at Henrietta High School March 28. Their efforts were very well received.

BAND

HENRIETTA BAND

On September 10, a larger band than Henrietta had seen in quite a few years assembled in the gymnasium and began keeping time with Mrs. Marion Gatts' able baton. Twenty-six instruments, twelve of the woodwind family, eight of the brass, and six percussion, joined in penetrating discord that first day, but practice throughout the year produced a good band.

Mrs. Gatts was very pleased with the new band instrument, a French horn, and a new snare drum, which the school bought. Band pins will be awarded to the Seniors who leave the band this year.

The Avon-Henrietta combined bands gave concerts on April 18 and 25. They formed a 75-piece band, which included ten guests from Grafton and Brookside. The bands practiced once a month, alternating between the Avon and Henrietta schools.

MESHCAJIMBECS

The Meshcajimbec Sub-Deb Club was organized in the spring of 1946. The name was derived from the first initials of the club's original members. Officers are elected every six months. The club holds its meetings every second and fourth Monday of the month. The purpose of the club is to promote discussions and social gatherings. They are under the supervision of two advisers, Mrs. William Griffin and Miss Virginia Richmond. Membership is open to all Henrietta High School girls.

The activities of the club for the past season have been many. Secret sisters were chosen in October. Knitting for the Red Cross is one of the club's latter projects.

Among the parties held were a wiener roast, Halloween party, Christmas party, and Valentine Tea. The Valentine Tea, which was on February 11, 1947, honored all the high school girls and their mothers. This is to be an annual affair.

Besides the parties there were discussion meetings once a month, at which timely problems pertaining to teen-agers were discussed.

Parent Teacher Association

President, Mrs. Harland Schlechter; Secretary, Mrs. George L. Smith; Vice President, Mrs. Melville Johnson; Treasurer, Mrs. Ada Berger.

The P.T.A., an organization of over 141 members, has enjoyed a very successful year under the capable leadership of Mrs. Harland Schlechter and her various committees. During the year they purchased soccer balls and sweat shirts for the students, bought a T. B. Bond, and contributed to the Red Cross. Volunteer members of the P.T.A. canned fruits and vegetables for the cafeteria.

To finance these projects, the P.T.A. held a Halloween Carnival, a paper drive, a membership drive, and a tea.

Among the interesting speakers and entertainments during the year were Rev. Stuart Olbrich, leader for Hard Times Party recreation; Miss Sutfin and Miss Swetland of Oberlin, who showed slides and travel pictures; Burgette, the Magician; and the County Orchestra, which furnished music.

The various grades of the school, in turn, had charge of devotionals and refreshments at the monthly meetings.

be taken care of was the matter of selling Christmas cards purchased through Mr. Elliott. It proved to be successful. Glen Sanders left us because of illness, and Gordon Wilford came back to get enough credits for his diploma. We sponsored on November 8 and 9 our senior play, called "Pulling the Curtain." We had loads of fun behind the scenes. During the year we put on several dances which turned out to be profitable. We served refreshments during and after the basketball games. The whole high school got together and had a Christmas party December 21, at the school. We have done many routine jobs that most seniors have done; the graduation pictures were taken by Stofan; the class flower is the white carnation; the colors are silver and scarlet and the motto is Rowing not Drifting. The Annual Hub is one great project that took lots of work. We had a lovely reception put on by the Juniors, and we enjoyed it very much. The Seniors had an enjoyable trip when they went to Washington, D.C.

The baccalaureate service was held at the Evangelical and Reformed Church. The Rev. Robert Beck gave the address. On May 23, 1947, we seniors ended our high school career, but still will carry these memories along all through life. We hope to make the world a better place, with our many duties as citizens.

Basketball '46 - '47

About the middle of October, eighteen bright-eyed youths were found lined up in the gym with the idea of playing to the best of their ability the type of basketball Henrietta is accustomed to play.

When the last whistle had blown during the regular season, it was found that Henrietta had won seven and lost twelve games.

At the tournament in the first game, the team played the very highly-favored Belden team and lost, 39 to 29. The first game of the season with Belden was a run-away by a 78 to 19 score, but the boys improved throughout the year. The boys didn't feel so bad about losing the tournament because it showed such great improvement.

The boys wish to thank Mr. Fails, their new coach, for the patience he had in teaching them the game of basketball and how to play together.

Boys' Sports

The boys of Henrietta this year pioneered in something that they hope will be carried even further in the future—touch football. A game was played with the Birmingham team and the Henrietta boys won 12-0. The boys look forward to a tackle football team in the future.

Mr. Fails and Mr. Gould both complimented the reserve squad for the fine sportsmanship and high spirit they showed in spite of a rather unsuccessful season. They always tried hard, and they were of great help to the varsity in practice.

As spring rolled around, the boys found themselves working earnestly on the baseball field. They entered the Lorain County boys' tournament and lost to Ridgeville in the first round. However, the game with South Amherst, 5-1, and the other games played showed great improvement.

Class Prophecy

flashed on the screen. It was Florence. That settled it. I sat through the movie twice.

After the movie, as is my usual custom, I went into a small restaurant for a bite to eat. As I sat there eating my pie and drinking a cup of coffee, I overheard some teenagers in the next booth. They were excitedly talking of a flying sub that was to make its test flight the next morning off the coast. It seemed this flying sub was the latest thing in water and air-craft combined. "Yes," squealed one girl, "and did you see the pilot's picture in this morning's paper? His name is Jim."

"Jim who?" asked one of the boys.

"A Jim Buchs from out west in Henrietta, Ohio," was her reply.

Upon hearing the name of the pilot, I jumped from my seat and rushed back to my hotel to see if I had purchased that particular paper along with the others that very morning.

I looked through the papers, but I must not have had the right ones, for I could find no picture of Jim anywhere in all that mass of dehydrated wood pulp. But I did find something else of great value to me, an article on growing frosted foods in the Antarctic. I guess maybe that will dampen the frosted food industries. You might say growing frosted foods is impossible. That's what I thought, too, until I read who performed the experiment. It was an Agricultural Agent, James C. Ives, with the Kat Expedition in the Antarctic. I knew, as soon as I read Jim's name, that it was possible. Jim always had inventive genius, and I was confident that he'd find a way to grow frosted foods if it took him forever to prove what he thought could be done.

I was getting tired. It had been a strenuous day for me, with all the excitement of hearing about my old classmates, so I prepared myself for bed.

Just as I made myself comfortable, the phone rang. I jumped up from my reclining position with all the enthusiasm I could muster, picked up the receiver, and voiced a rather shaky, "Hello."

"That voice on the other end—who is it?" I thought. "Surely I know. I should. It sounded just like Marjorie Griffin's. But how would she know I was here in New York? The last I knew she was in Paris, working as a buyer for one of New York's leading stores on Fifth Avenue. Then I asked who it was. I grabbed for a chair to seat myself. It was Marjorie. But how? where? what? why? I fired questions one right after another which she had no time to answer. Then I asked her how she knew I was there at the hotel? I quickly put my hand over my mouth so she could have a chance to answer with no interruptions. She told me she had seen my name in the hotel register when she registered that afternoon and had tried all evening to contact me. I could hardly hold back the tears. "Marjorie, my pet," I squealed, "why don't you come to my room where we can have a nice long talk?"

"I'll be right with you," was her reply. With that I put the receiver back in place and continued sitting. I was too weak to move. Presently I heard a knock. It was Marjorie. We sat for hours talking about old times and people we knew. It was fun. She told me she came back from Paris for a conference with an American designer, none other than Elaine Wilford. She was working for a movie studio in Hollywood designing costumes for the stars, and she wanted the latest fashion information from Paris to use in her next venture. Marjorie was to meet Elaine at 10:30 the next morning for breakfast and the conference. She extended the invitation to me, and I readily accepted.

We had talked for hours on end and the time was slipping by all too fast. We decided to retire for the night with the high hope of meeting in the morning. This we did.

Elaine was as surprised to see me as I was glad to see her. We walked to the dining room and found a table. As we were giving our orders to the waiter, someone accidentally bumped my chair. The woman turned to apologize to me and indeed, what a pleasant surprise the bump turned out to be.

The woman who bumped my chair was Marilyn Richey. We asked her to sit down with us and have a bite to eat. We asked her how she happened to be in New York.

"It's a long story," she said, "but to make it short, here's the way it goes:

"After graduation I was awarded a scholarship. So I went to college. Then I began to teach school. I was put in charge of advising the publication of the high school newspaper and yearbook. Right now I'm attending the Journalism Convention at the University."

I giggled. Poor Marilyn. She was always getting stuck with the job of editing the school newspaper and yearbook at our school, too, and now that is her life work.

I was sorry to break up the party, but I had to return to the hotel to begin packing. I was leaving on the 1:10 to go back to my humble domicile.

As I was packing my clothes, I thought of all the happy reunions with my classmates. My heart swelled with joy to think that I had accomplished such a wonderful feat.

After I had boarded my plane and settled back in my seat, I considered seriously taking a position with a missing persons' bureau in my own home town.

Girls' Physical Education

We organized a Girls' Athletic Association in November. The club was organized so the girls who belonged to it could receive G.A.A. letters at the end of the year. The officers of the G.A.A. are as follows: President, Betty Ann Heyman; Vice President, Marjorie Griffin; Secretary, Barbara Griffin; Treasurer, Shirley Coultrip; News Reporter, Carolyn Schlechter; Manager, Shirley Coultrip; Scorekeeper, Arlene Holzhauer. We hope that the gym classes of later years will carry on the G.A.A.

After fall baseball, we went into winter sports held in the gymnasium, where we played such games as indoor baseball, volleyball, basketball, and calisthenics.

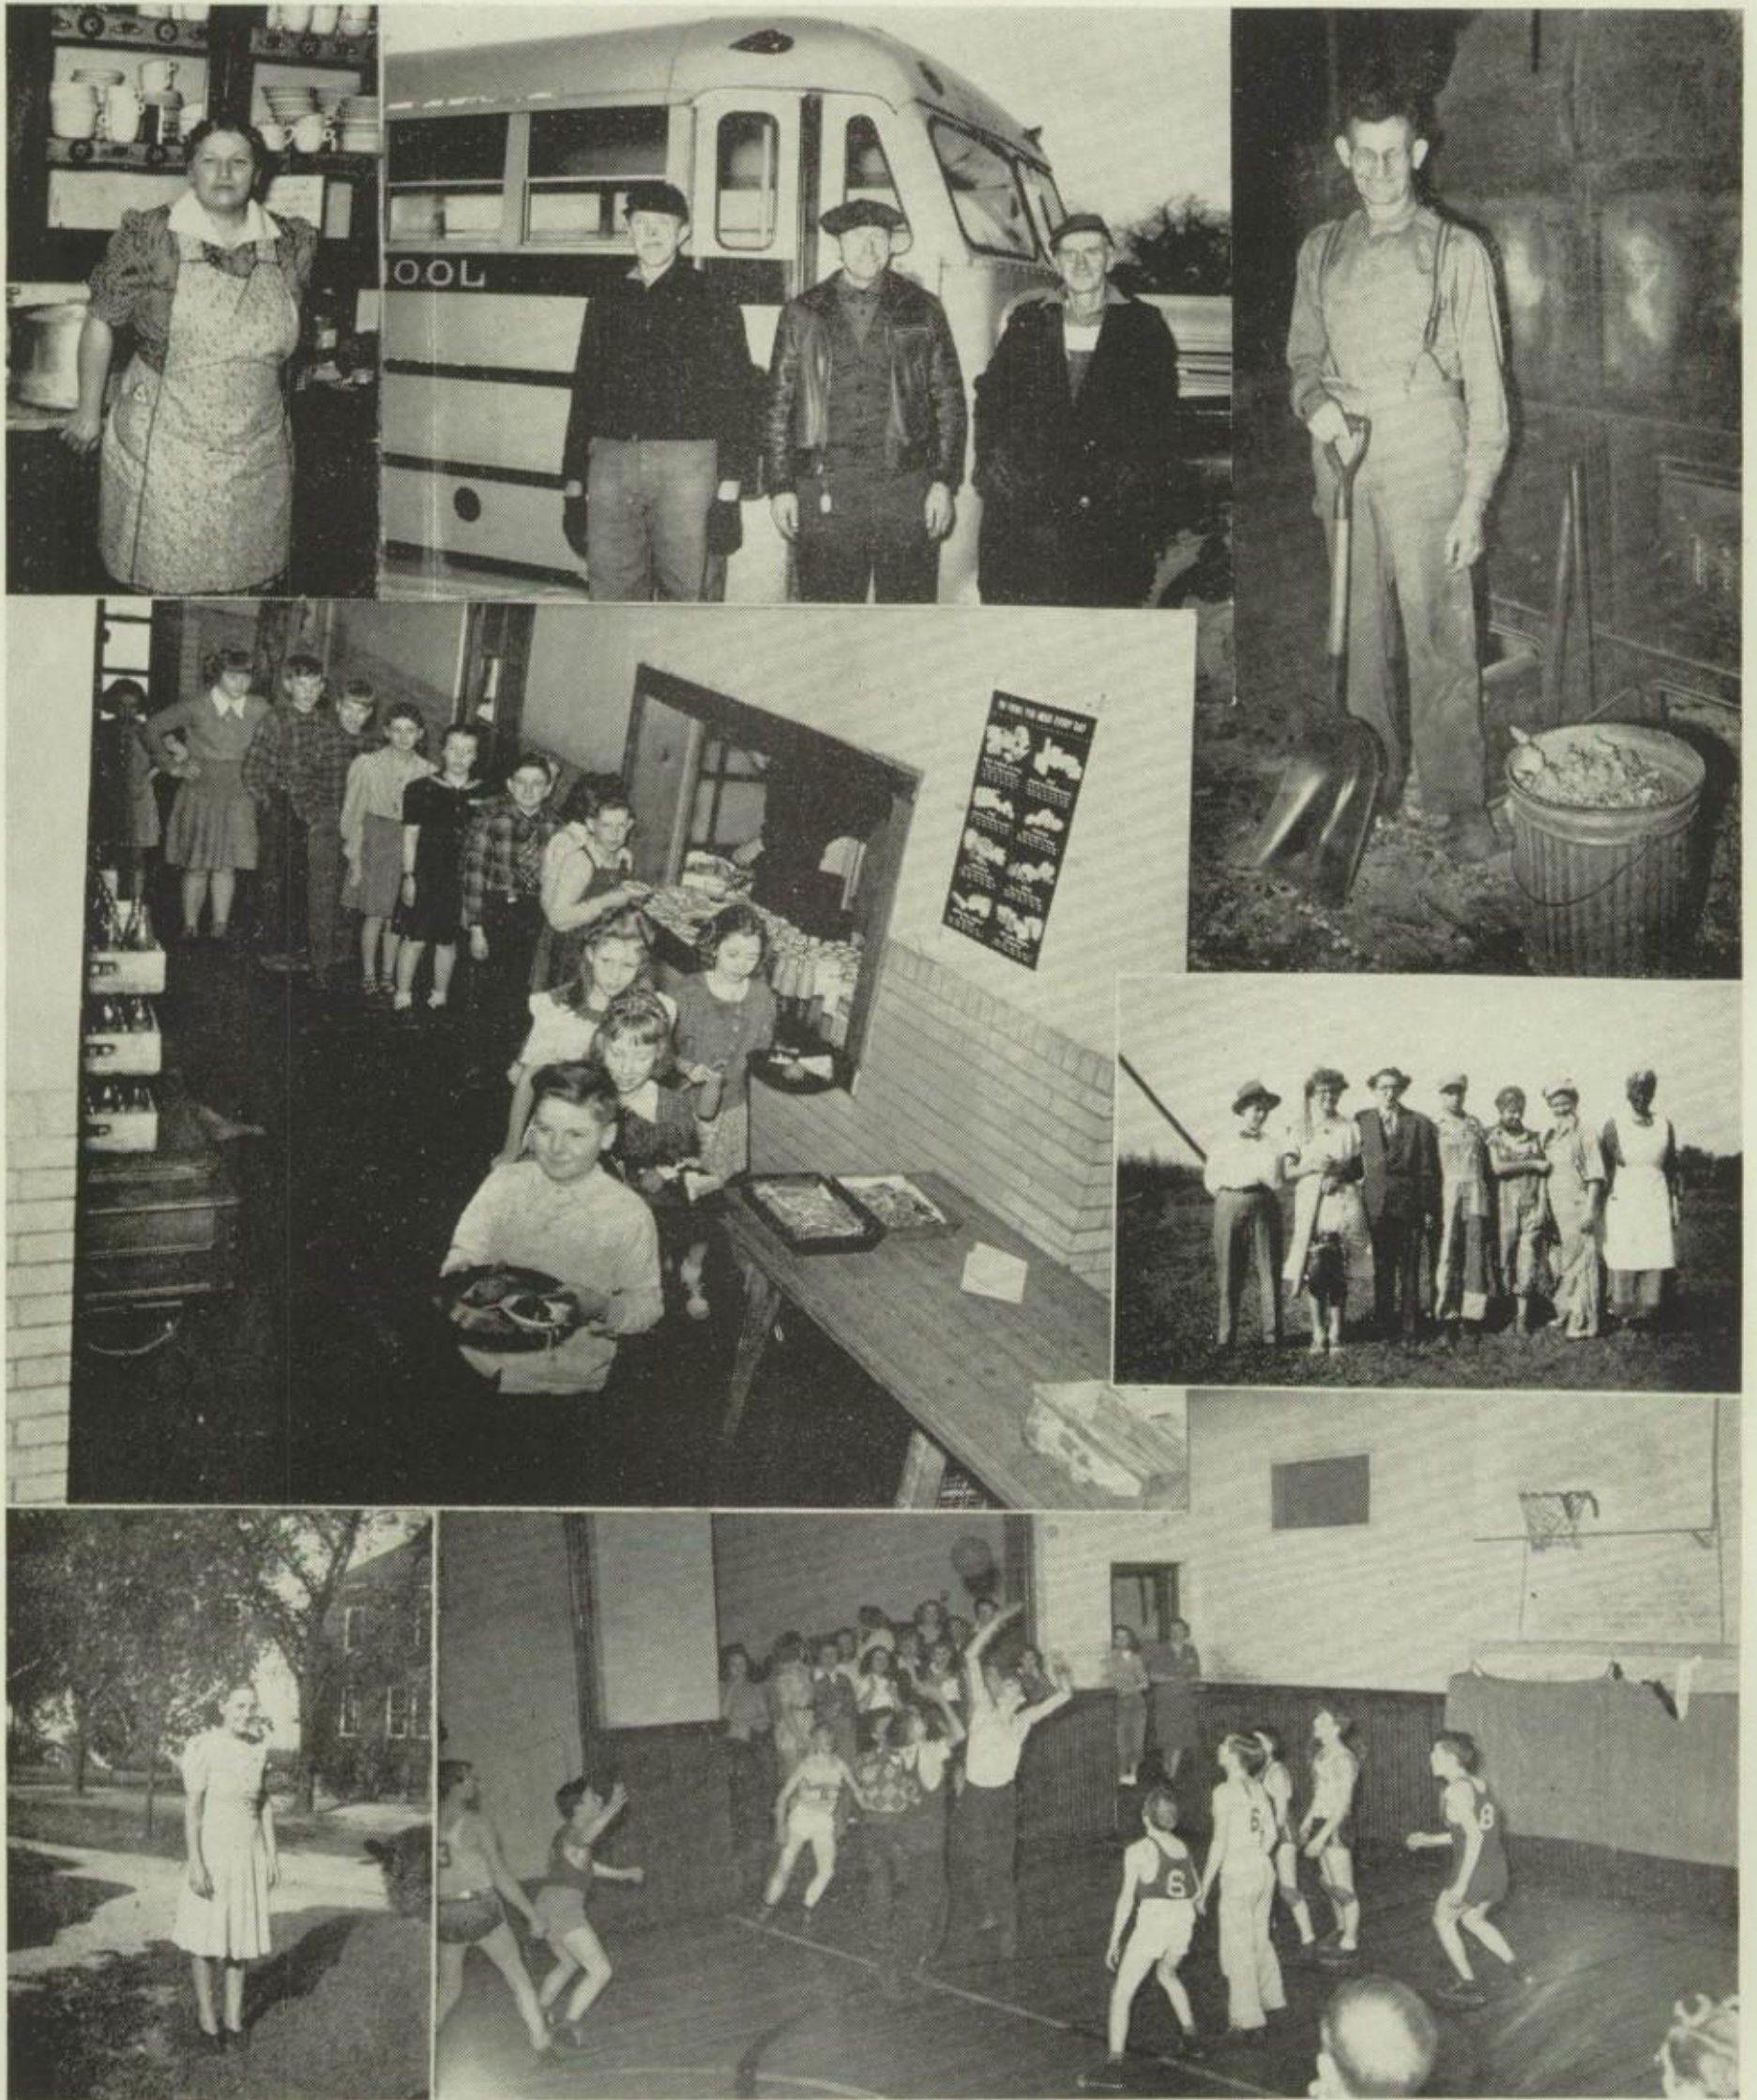

Basketball was taken up as the chief sport for the winter. We organized three teams to play intramural games during noon hours on Wednesday.

On March 17, an exhibition game open to the public was played. Two teams were chosen from the girls' gym class; the teams were called Ridgerunners and Stumpjumpers. The Ridgerunners won by the score of 24-23. The captains elected by each team were Laura Yenik and Marjorie Griffin. An exciting and enjoyable game was enjoyed by all who attended.

After the cold winter had settled down and basketball had run out of season, we again began practicing for baseball. The girls practiced hard and took a great interest in baseball during the spring because they entered the county tournament. The tournament was held among the girls' baseball teams from schools in Lorain County. The team winning the tournament game received a trophy.

To end the year of girls' physical education, they entered into another active sport known as track. The girls were busy practicing high-jumping, running, baseball-throwing, archery, and broadjumping for the big event that was held at Clearview School. All Lorain County schools compete in this meet.
